
EVEN IF THE CONCESsion is made that no newspaper is ever completely free from typographical errors, newspaper people still cringe when a "typo" pops up.

Naturally some of the errors are worse than others. So you might say that the cringe can be of either major or minor nature, depending on the scope of the typographical boo-boo.

The errors that are the most difficult to catch (before they appear in the finished product) are generally those that are caused by mental lapse on the part of the writer.

Often in such instances the writer has not even misspelled a word which, of course, would have given the proof-reader a fighting chance. Instead the wrong word would be used and spelled correctly.

An illustration of what we mean took place in this column last week.

We had a mental lapse. Fortunately that is an ailment that does not occur too often. (Despite what many of our friends (?), to use the term in its most general sense, may say).....

THIS, OF COURSE, IS leading up to an explanation of what occurred.

Provided, of course, it is possible to explain.

It refers to the item about the newly-appointed planning director for Campbell, Arthur A. Kee, now principal planner for the City of Sunnyvale, who takes office here Sept. 3.

The first reference to the name of the new planning director in this column was correct. It was spelled KEE.

But in the subsequent two paragraphs when the name was used it was spelled McKEE.

It just goes to show you how intricate the mind really is.

Or to put it another way, a person has to be in the ball field in order to play ball.

Apparently in this case we were way outside the ball park.

In the interest of science and any psychiatrist who happens to be in the wings waiting, we may be able to shed a little light on the phenomenum (?), although we really can't fully "explain" it.

IN DISCUSSING THINGS in general with Kee in the office of Bob Stephens, city manager, we suggested that the name KEE had a sort of Oriental lilt or tilt or background to it.

Obviously, we pointed out, that was not true. (And those of you who saw the guy's picture in last week's paper will agree.)

Kee explained that his family was of Irish extraction and on the old sod apparently the family name had been McKEE.

Over the years the "Mc" part of it had been dropped.

You see then that partially explains the source of our mental lapse which caused the error in the column last week when we unintentionally stuck the "Mc" back on Kee's name.

Fortunately the news story and the picture identification was correct.

But how come the proofreader did not notice the difference between "Kee" and "McKee"? That's a good question.

You see we also read proof.

MOST PEOPLE ARE aware that the various service clubs raise considerable dough during the year through "fines" of their members, a sort of a painless (?) method of extracting the almighty dollar in a fun way.

The fines that are levied are generally for reasons that, in most instances have been exaggerated and embellished to such an extent that they are almost unrecognizable from the actual happening.

However, traditionally most service clubs also "fine" their members if their pictures have appeared in the newspapers. No fabrication of "evidence" is needed in these instances. The newspaper is visible

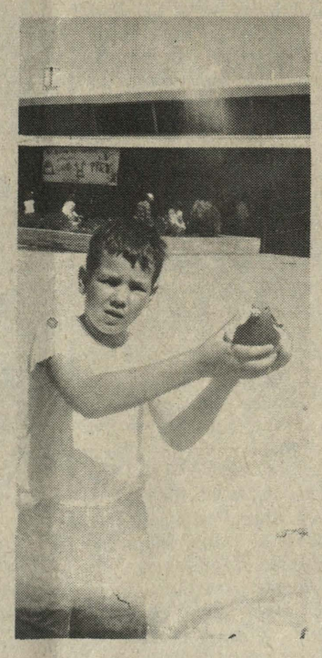
THIS BIG DOG WENT TO SCHOOL—Tascha, a 2-year old German Shepherd went to school last week with Jerry Meyers of 1378 Antonio Lane. The occasion was the pet parade held at Rosemary School. Other children look on admiring the dog, who actually belonged to a neighbor. Parade was part of the Campbell Union (elementary) school district recreation program.



ONE OF 20—Shawn Skillman, 370 N. Milton, brought one of his 20 homing pigeons to Rosemary school recently for the pet parade that was part of the summer recreation program.

City loses civic center tower

Fred Sahadi lists time delay as basic reason for withdrawal

In almost as dramatic a manner as he had originally presented the unique civic center 17-story tower proposal almost four months ago, Fred Sahadi, local developer, on Monday night officially withdrew his offer at the City Council meeting.

But the drama on Monday was of the negative kind tinged with disappointment as opposed to the enthusiastic "launching" last April of the unique concept of a multi-story civic center.

Sahadi indicated, however, that there still was a possibility that he and his fellow-developer, Pittsburgh - Des Moines Steel Co., would go ahead with the multi-story office building on the property at Campbell and Bascom avenues but without the city as the major tenant.

Sahadi explained to the City Council that the basic reason for the withdrawal of the proposition was because of the indefinite time-period that the city's counsel had indicated it would take to legally check out the project.

The uncertainty of how much time would be involved in researching all the legal aspects, he said, had caused his fellow "venturer", the steel company, some misgivings. The directors, therefore, felt it would be wise to withdraw because of the indefiniteness.

Sahadi, this city's second largest tax-payer and owner of plush apartment and mobile-home park, in addition to the former 34 acre Brynteson Ranch at Campbell and Bascom, admitted that he was heart broken that his "dream" of having the civic center in the 17-story tower was not to materialize.

He added that although the "dream" may have been unusual, unique, bold and dramatic, he felt that it was still a practical approach to his community's image.

He said that the plans for the cultural-commercial center for the major portion of the 34-acre property at Campbell and Bascom avenues were now going into their final stages. At no time, he pointed out, had there been any intention of dropping that development, no matter what the end result of the civic center tower complex would have been.

Sahadi was commended by Mayor Bill Smeed and Councilmen Homer Hyde, Dean Chamberlin and Ed Rogers for his attitude and community spirit that he had shown during the trying four-month period.

Smeed, Hyde and Chamberlin added that they were disappointed that the proposition had been withdrawn.

Later in the meeting, Hyde and Chamberlin in a discussion over variances expressed displeasure with the apparent lack of communication since April between the developer and the city attorney's office.

At the last Planning Commission meeting City Attorney Joe Bonacina ruled that the commission had no authority to grant a variance in height either for a residential fence or a multi-story office building.

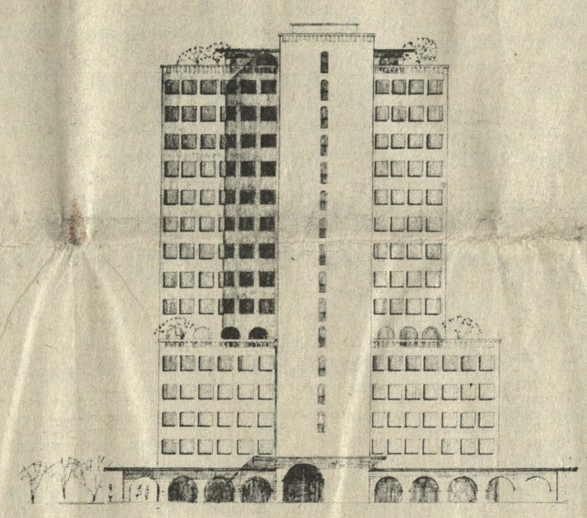
Bonacina at the present time is serving in what has been termed a "lame duck" capacity, as he has submitted his resignation effective Dec. 31. He "surprised" several commissioners with his variance ruling.

Hyde, who had the record for length of service on the Planning Commission prior to becoming a city councilman, expressed surprise over Bonacina's ruling, noting that while serving on the commission he had approved many similar requests for variances.

At the Planning Commission meeting in question, Bonacina ruled that the commission could not grant a variance to raise the height of either a sideyard fence from 3½ feet to 5-feet or could it grant the request of Sahadi for variance from the present height limitation of structures from 75-feet to 250-feet.

Bonacina in ruling adversely said that a variance was not the proper vehicle to use in such instances, an amendment to the ordinance was necessary.

At the request of the commission, he said he would present a written opinion on variances by Sept. 3.



THERE WILL BE NO CIVIC CENTER TOWER.

C-M Ponies move ahead

Campbeli-Moreland Pony League all-stars play their first game in the double-elimination divisional tournament at National City (near San Diego) tonight (Wed.).

The divisional tourney is the last stop before the world series that will be held in Washington, PA. Aug. 21-25.

The C-M Ponies won the right to play in the divisional contest by defeating Sacramento last Sunday 6-2 in the final game in the regional playoff held at the Castro School field on W. Campbell Ave.

The 6-2 win on Sunday was a must victory for the C-M outfit because Sacramento had won the first game 8-5.

Campbell-Moreland was host team for the regional play and did not have to go through the preliminary steps. The "C-M"ers won the regional last year and in 1964 were the world champions.

City to sell $1.6 million in bonds

In October, this year, the City of Campbell will offer for sale $1,620,000 of the $2,620,000 civic improvement bond issue that was approved by the citizens in October 1967.

The city has already sold $500,000 of the total bond issue and with the $1,620,000 offered for sale, this will mean that $500,000 will remain unsold.

The City Council approved the sale of the bonds after Geoffrey H. Whitaker, city's finance director, had explained the reason for the bond being offered sooner than had been anticipated.

He said that the so-called "Watson amendment" that will be on the ballot on Nov. 5 could complicate future bond issues and the city's financial consultants and the city's finance committee had recommended the bond sale in October for that reason.

Whitaker said that Dale Scott, executive director of the Santa Clara County Taxpayers Association, and Joe Arch of Schwaabacher, Rafferty & Co., the city's financial consultants, had discussed the bond issue with City Manager Bob Stephens and Councilman Ralph Doetsch.

Whitaker said that the proposal to sell $1,620,000 in bonds is about six months ahead of the planned schedule but he was confident that it would not have an adverse effect on the city's tax rate.

Whitaker drew a laugh, however, when he suggested optimistically that it could be possible even to reduce the tax rate.

Under the proposal officially adopted by the City Council on Monday, the city hall complex would have $755,000 of the $1,620,000; firestations would get $90,000; the library would receive $330,000 and the streets would have $445,000. The balance that would remain of the unsold bonds ($500,000) would be all earmarked for street work.

In a related action to the bond issue on Monday night, the City Council authorized the calling for bids on Sept. 19 for the improvement of E. Rincon Ave. to First as part of Local Improvement District No. 19 which is expected to cost approximately $50,000.

Bill Wren, public works director, said that the city's share of the improvement project was estimated to be about $37,000 with the property owners putting up about $12,800.

Wren explained that the city's funds will come from the bond money that was approved last October for street improvement projects under the unique one-third-two-third formula with the city contributing the major share.

Wren said that 27 property owners are involved in the E. Rincon project which will include curbs, sidewalks and gutters as well as street improvement. The utility poles, however, will remain above ground.

Local kids parade pets

Recreation activities at local playgrounds this summer have included a variety of activities for young'uns including pet parades at local schools where judges have made difficult decisions to select the wildest, softest, littlest, biggest, smartest, best behaved, ugliest, noisiest, best trained, best decorated, or oldest pet brought by a participating youngster.

The "Dr. Dolittle" parade was only one of many weekly activities under the direction of Barbara Conant, recreation director for the 17 schools of the Campbell Union elementary school district. Other events during the summer included Hawaiian Hukilaus, carnivals and hippie holidays.

Of special interest to the baseball crowd was a baseball clinic where young ball players received coaching in the various arts of sliding, catching, pitching, and stealing bases from Ron Reynolds, varsity baseball coach at Blackford High school.

Movies, trips, games, contests and crafts are all part of the annual program. Recreation officials announced that over 325 children attended the events held at Hazelwood school, with other schools similarly occupied.

Street projects head council agenda

Improvement of Campbell Ave. involving the reconstruction of the future surface on Campbell Ave. between Harrison and First and overlaying the existing pavement between First and Winchester got the go ahead signal from the city Council Monday night.

Council action directed Bill Wren, public works director, to call for bids on the job which had been estimated at $25,000.

The Council also directed the calling for bids on the warning blinker traffic signal at the approaches of the pedestrian crossings at Rosemary School. The project will be the first to be installed in the county and, Wren said, the only one of the same type that he knew of was in New Mexico which had reported that it was highly successful. It was estimated that the cost would be $3800.

The flashers, Wren said, would be located 200 feet from the crossing.

At Monday's meeting, acting on Wren's recommendation, the Council awarded the contract to Pete Cristich for $5213.20 for curbs and gutters on Harrison Ave. but deferred the awarding the contract for the new bridge and street improvements on Hamilton Ave. between Bascom and the freeway for which the low bid submitted was $161,251.90 almost $40,000 more than the engineer's estimate of $122,830.04.

Wren said that his department wanted to re-examine the proposal during the deferment period to determine whether to reject the bids (only two were submitted, A.E. Mullin and Lew Jones) or only construct the bridge at this time.

City Council calls "specials"

In addition to regular meetings, the City Council has three special sessions pending.

On Tuesday, Aug. 20, the attorney for the owner of "Classy Chassy", one of this city's two topless joints, is scheduled to conduct the rebuttal of the first hearing last month in which Campbell police officers recited the police problems that the establishment has had.

The Council is holding the hearings to determine whether the Classy Chassy license should be revoked because the charges were made by the police.

On Thursday, Aug. 22, the Council is expected to review and adopt the final city budget for the fiscal year that will end June 30, 1969.

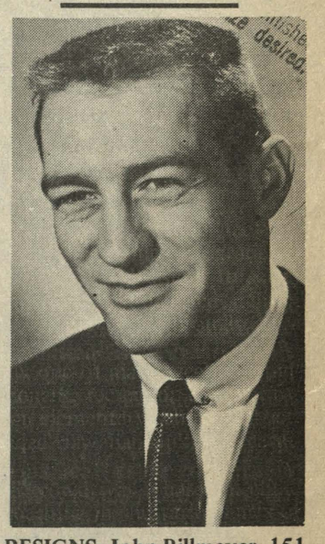
Then on Tuesday, Aug. 28, the Council will hold the public hearing on Specific Area II of the advanced plans for the city. Specific Area II involves the downtown core and has taken on a different complexion with the withdrawal of the civic center tower proposal made by Fred Sahadi.

Planners meet next Monday

Modified plans for the commercial building planned by Ira Kirkorian at 1410 W. Campbell Ave., near the Straw Hat will be resubmitted to the Planning Commission next Monday, Aug. 19.

Other items on the planners agenda include requests for approval of plans for the Humble Oil Co. service station planned for south of Campbell Plaza Shopping Center. The commission denied the use permit for the station but the City Council overruled that action.

Plans have also been submitted for approval of a restaurant at 301 E. Hamilton submitted by Jasper S. Hawkins just west of the Union Oil station at Hamilton and Central.



RESIGNS--John Billmeyer, 151 Marianne Way, one of the original members of the Parks and Recreation Commission has submitted his resignation. He has served on the commission since 1964 and was chairman in 1967.

Persons interested in an appointment to the commission should contact Carl Kuhn, administration assistant, City Hall or Don Hebard, commission chairman.

Appointment will be made by the City Council upon recommendation of the commission.

Editorial

College parking

Within a few weeks the schools in the area will once more be in full session and with the beginning of the fall term will come the usual traffic problems that are caused by the schools, i.e. kids swarming across intersections with or without crossing guards; kids on bikes pedaling the wrong way on streets and kids on bikes pedaling the right way.

There is no question about the traffic problems that schoolkids on bikes or walking create. But most people generally expect such hazards and proceed with caution when near a school or when they see kids on bikes or walking.

On the other hand, students at West Valley College create few traffic problems with their bikes or in hiking to or from the campus.

However, they have created an annoying traffic problem since they have been in Campbell which has caused considerable ill will between the permanent residents and the college people.

Ironically, the "traffic problem" in town that the college students have caused is not based on problems made by moving vehicles or people walking or riding bikes.

We refer, of course, to the indiscriminate parking on residential streets near the college by students which has been the vogue since the college first opened.

Although the college conducts a summer session and there are many students in attendance during the summer months, the summer enrollment is a far cry from the regular term so the residential streets near the college are not over-taxed during this time of year.

The long-suffering residents near the college are having a two-month respite from their parking woes brought on by inconsiderate college kids.

But it is, in all probability, only a temporary relief. In a few weeks we expect the residential streets once more to be heavily loaded with the cars of the college students.

And, if the same pattern is followed this fall as has been the case in previous years, chances are there will be many, many vacant spaces in the college-maintained parking lot between Rincon and Campbell avenues.

We have long bemoaned this incongruous parking situation that exists, i.e. residential streets jam-packed while many spaces are open in the parking lot.

But our moans apparently have not done much good.

We realize, of course, that the college administration has made a valiant effort to "sell" the students on using the Rincon Ave. parking lot.But their efforts have not been too successful so far.

We sincerely hope that occupying the first new building on the Saratoga campus will have a good effect on the West Valley College students.

Maybe the students' attitude on parking will change now that they know a permanent campus is on the way.

We admit that is a little far-fetched.

But we are hoping that the college students who remain in the "temporary" permanent campus in Campbell will have more consideration for the permanent residents of this community than has been evident in the past.

Apparently the so-called temporary campus of West Valley College is to remain in Campbell for some years to come. At least there has been no indication to date as to when the college is going to pack up and leave.

Again we suggest, as we have a number of times in the past, that the college students become good neighbors, even for the few hours they are in class.

We are certain that these same students who so inconsiderately park in front of residences instead of in the college maintained parking lot on Rincon Ave. would yell to high heaven, if people would park in front of the homes in which they live.

In our opinion there should be no double-standard parking.

It's a two-way street.

Although not a member of any service club, we have long known about the use of newspaper photos as a basis for fines.

Over the years we have often heard the anguished moans of club members who anticipate being fined at the next meeting because their mugs appeared in print in this sheet.

We can't recall offhand, however, that any one has ever refused to have his picture taken.

After all, you see, they are helping the club's treasury.

They generally have been willing to put their self-imposed modesty on the shelf temporarily in the interests of the club's bank account.

AS YOU CAN WELL IMAgine, at times your editor has been accused of deliberately running pictures of service club members because we wanted them to shell out dought at the club luncheons.

That, of course, is not true.

However, we must admit that it has been tempting at times to sort of put 'em on the $$ spot.

And, brother, what a field day we would have at the annual Kiwanis-Rotary softball game!!

That's the annual event, by the way, when the Kiwanians find out that your editor is not a Rotarian. And vice versa.

Fortunately the club members have short memories.

But we still think we should have a cut of the fines levied, based on the photos that were published in the paper on the annual classic.

FOR THE RECORD, Merv Willoughby, long-time highly successful New York Life agent and former president of the Campbell Rotary Club, was NOT the coach-captain-manager of the Rotary club's ball team this year, as was stated in the pre-game story in The Campbell Press.

That was an honest error, however, for Merv had guided the destiny of the Rotary Club ball team in the "traditional" against the Kiwanis Club for almost a decade.

This year Fire Chief George Maxwell headed the Rotary aggregation.

(No reflection on Merv, but the Rotarians won this year for the first time).

But that was not what we wanted to mention.

It just goes to show that even an error in a newspaper sometimes can be a blessing in disguise. (Is our halo on straight?)

Remember that, please, next time you raise heck with your poor defenseless (?) editor.

You see, because the news story in The Press incorrectly reported that Merv Willoughby (as he had for the past 10 years) would again manage (to use the term loosely) the Rotarian team, two old World War II buddies were able to meet again.

Doesn't that just grab you?

SPECIFICALLY, WHEN George Adams, our next door neighbor on Ridgeley Dr., saw the item about Merv Willoughby managing the Rotarian team, it rang a bell.

For the record, it should be noted that our immediate neighbors DO subscribe to The Press on their own volition.

Anyway our neighbor, George, trit-trotted over to the Rotary-Kiwanian ball game simply because he had noted in the story in The Press that Merv was running the Rotary ball club.

It so happened that Merv and George had served together in the Army in World War II more than 20 years ago and they had not seen each other since.

The two of them had a great visit at the ball game even if Merv had been relegated to playing first base instead of managing.

Merv was easily recognizable, Adams said, because he had been playing first base on an Army team in the same way when he had last seen him some 20 years ago.

Tempus fugit.

Or can you say it better?

UPHOLDS PLANNERS

On Monday night, the City Council upheld the action of the Planning Commission which denied the request of Kenneth W. Bott for a use permit for a car wash to be located at Gale Dr. near Hamilton.

Beautification drive in city goes into final weeks of campaign

A six point evaluation sheet was distributed last week to preliminary judges in the city beautification contest currently underway.

Citizens volunteering to take part in deciding what efforts had been made by local business establishments attended special meeting where they were given a brief history of past city-wide projects by councilman Edward Rogers.

A panel was presented by three local businessmen to discuss their problems in maintaining and beautifying their respective establishments.

Tom Snowden of Snowden-Pence classified himself as a "convert" to present city policies of requiring set-backs and plantings in the industrial park.

Bill Mitchell of Bonanza Home Center, told of the efforts made to keep within certain business themes and in maintaining the premises.

Jeanette Watson, chairman of the Citizens Beautification Committee explained the evaluation forms to the audience. These will be made on a 100-point system, considering building condition, signs, litter control, plantings and other efforts.

Seven judges have been selected to make final decisions. They are: Page Conner, manager of the Valley Greeters; Robert Culp, Campbell High principal; Dr. Richard Hayden, Sunnyvale mayor and West Valley College professor; Robert M. Hosfeldt, manager of KNTV; Dean McKellep, executive director of Santa Clara County Chamber of Commerces, Inc.; Mrs. Edith Morley, Campbell Park and Recreation Commission, and Jose Stell of San Jose Mercury.

Winners of the contest will be announced during the week of Sept. 16.

It was a double ring ceremony which united Sheryl Marie Schubert and Dan Allen Garster in a nuptial mass at St. Lucy's Church recently.

According to Mr. Webster, a crew is "a body of workers assigned to a definite undertaking". A Girl Scout CREW--is this and much more!

CREW (Cadets Ready and Ever Willing) members are girls of Cadette and Senior Scout age--well trained in the skills of fire building, outdoor cookery, song and game teaching, crafts, etc. These CREW members give of themselves, unselfishly and without reward, to help in the summer Day Camp programs across the Santa Clara Valley. Many work more than one camp during the summer. They are "leader aids" in that they help take some of the load off the mothers who lead the units of Brownies and Junior Scouts.

A successful Day Camp can be measured by the fun and new skills learned by the young scouts attending and this type of success is largely due to the CREW. They're the greatest!

A number of Campbell girls have been working at the Vasona Day camp this summer, under "camp" names, keeping their "real" identities a secret.

FLAG DRILL--Brownies learn how to handle a flag supervised by "CREW" worker "Sparky" at Vasona Day Camp. "Sparky", right, who has been working with the Girl Scout Day Camp program, took a special "CREW" course before she was accepted into the "CREW" class.

Santa comes to Jaycette party

Of course, we're not sure if Santa can come, but Campbell Jaycettes have been trying to reach the old saint. Especially since it's a fund raising, and the wives of the Campbell JayCees are particularly anxious that it is a success.

Beth and Phillippe Auger are hostess and host for the event which will start at 4 p.m. Supper will be a "dime-a-dip" plate.

JayCettes, whose current project is the Block Parent, are wives of members of the JayCees, which is open to all young men ages 21-35.

Couples interested in the event are invited to call Mr. and Mrs. Nozer Haladwala, 379-0297.

Carnival funds dystrophy drive

Parading their bikes up and down neighboring streets to "round up business" nine young Campbellites put on a highly successful carnival to raise money for muscular dystrophy needs last week.

Headed by eight year old Brian Kelly, 1675 Manton, the young group set up a variety of games and food sales in the Kelly backyard which successfully raised $12.76.

Don and Mike Bayless, Shawn Kelly, Greg Reynolds, Andy Hansen and Ann and Mary Vilter, all students at Forest Hills school, operated games of sponge tosses, penny toss, a fishing pond and dart throws and sold popcorn and drinks to their friends and neighbors.

Inspiration to local youngsters is "Captain Satellite" a TV personality who supplies fund raising kits to young people who wish to participate in the muscular dystrophy drive.

PERSONAL INVITATION--Local JayCees are issued a "special invitation" to the JayCettes "Christmas in August" party by Lorene Hughes, secretary-treas., Beth Auger, president, and Rose Gomes, vice-president, as the Christmas clad ladies invade a JayCee meeting recently. Jerry Gomes, JayCee president, poses with the auxiliary members.

Neighborhood clean-up rewards

There were a lot of sore and aching muscles on Via Montalvo last Monday morning.

In the spirit, to quote one resident, of an old fashioned barn-raising, eleven families pooled their talents to make life a little brighter for the twelfth.

Mrs. Morris Jaques had noticed the plight of her young neighbor, who, with six youngsters, ages 2-10, was having a hard time. "She isn't on welfare, said Mrs. Jaques, "and she doesn't want to apply for any, but the support money she gets is kind of slow coming."

Apparently, the woman had been the recipient of a good deal of donations by well-meaning people, for Mrs. Jaques noted that both the ga rage and several rooms of the home were piled high with items of clothing and toys which were unusable.

Morris Jaques had already done some work, gratis, on the woman's car, but it suddenly became obvious that more help was needed.

The Jaques' spoke to their next door neighbors, the Jerry Grimes'. Grimes took the project to heart and starting knocking on his neighbors doors. The results were over-whelming, and after a short "planning" meeting, the project was on.

Sunday morning, the woman, by prearrangement, took her six boys away for the day. By 9 a.m. the work was in full swing. Sherman More, lives on Via Cristobal, heard of the project, and of the men's plan to rent a rototiller to clean out the back yard. "Don't bother," said More, "I've got a tiller." "She needs a lawn," said another. "I've got some soil conditioner." Contributions (averaging $5) were used to buy seed and the lawn was planted.

A seepage into the garage had long been a problem, so two or three enterprising men built a sump and retaining wall. The day wore on.

About 2 p.m., the Grimes invited everyone to their house. Women of the block brought hot dishes and salads and respectfully stood back while the "men-folks" had their fill. Some of the children who'd been working took a dip in the Grimes' doughboy. Then back to work.

An electrical company worker acquired a dryer and put it into running condition and made small repairs on a washer; another cleaned and oiled the furnace. Children weeded and planted. Teenagers got paint and applied a coat to the family room (and then someone noticed they'd used both water-base and enamel paint--together!).

Women cleaned and sorted laundry and restored order to closets and cupboards. A grocery expedition restocked the kitchen shelves. Hinges were repaired.

When the day was over, there was still more work to be done. "You know," said Mrs. Jaques. "I think we got more out of doing this as a neighborhood than we gave."

In addition to the Jaques and Grimes family, labor and money was contributed by Mr and Mrs. Simpson and their sons, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Faber, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hockman, Dr. and Mrs. Larry Dunn, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Bryant, Mr. and Mrs. Cy Petty and Mr. and Mrs Bob Kilpatrick.

CHEERY FARMER

The "Cheery Farmer" symbol of Santa Clara County Fair, was born in the mind of a man who posed for the first drawings, and who has become synonomous in the minds of many with the Fair itself.

He is the chairman of the Fair's publicity committee, Al Buhot, and his fertile mind came up with the "Cheery Farmer" symbol after local newspapers conducted a contest for a fair slogan.

FIRST FAIR - 1941

The first Santa Clara County Fair opened at the present Fairgrounds site on Oct. 7. 1941, was followed by a second fair the next year, closed down by World War II. and then reopened for business in 1946, to continue yearly to the present.

Thus, the 24th annual Fair opens Friday (Aug. 16) for a 10-day run, in an extravaganza of color and excitement that has made this Fair the third largest in the State of California.

ON CAPITOL HILL

with "Charlie" Gubser

If California Republicans had been given a choice would they have chosen Richard Nixon, Ronald Reagan, Nelson Rockefeller, or some other man as the GOP standard bearer? Thanks to our Rube Goldberg system of choosing presidential nominees, this question will never be answered.

As the nominating and seconding speeches of three bona fide candidates and eleven favorite sons droned on at Miami Beach last week, I was struck with the irony of the world's leading democracy picking its leadership in such an undemocratic fashion. Admittedly, the system has produced many great presidents and very few bad ones. But this does not rebut the fact that a free and open national primary system could be even better. If the people are to be trusted to choose between the nominees next November, why couldn't they be trusted to choose the nominees themselves?

Of the fifty states, no two have identical primary election laws. As a result the 1,353 delegates who gathered at Miami Beach last week were all loyal party members but not a representative cross section of Republican voters. Next week, in Chicago, the same will hold true for the Democratic Party. Frequently delegates are selected for their loyalty to one local politician, or to one faction. As busy men and women they don't usually have the time to sound out grassroots thinking of party members in order to represent broadly held views. Unlike our local delegates, many have never walked a precinct, addressed envelopes, licked stamps, or done any of the menial chores which are so essential to a political organization.

When selected, the delegates gather in a milling and swirling maze of rumor, crisis, "hoopla" and hard work. Values change. Matters like the latest Gallup or Harris poll suddenly become more carefully read than the stock quotations. Meaningless nominating speeches fill the early morning hours and supporters of a parade of favorite sons whoop it up as though it were New Year's Eve in August and their candidate really had a chance. A political convention is truly a different world!

But there are benefits which are worthwhile. A convention provides excellent television exposure for delegates and politicos; it undoubtedly produces a handsome profit for hotels and resorts in a convention city; it generates party spirit and enthusiams; and it does provide the background for the formulation of party principles which go into a platform. Though the words of the document are quickly forgotten, it is healthy for members of a party to sit down once each four years and carefully weigh party principles and refine them into prose.

But we could still have these benefits if the party nominee were chosen in a primary held on the same day across the nation and participated in by all bona fide candidates seeking the nomination. The public's choice would not be limited and confined to what a few political leaders thought best for reasons of their own. We would, in fact, make a truly democratic choice.

TV spectaculars are fun, but they are not the best method of choosing presidential nominees.

Fire department offers hints for protection

FIRE HURTS

"Hot!" is one of the first words understood and repeated by a small child. Early in life he learns that "Hot!"–followed by mother's admonition "Don't touch!"–must be kept in mind when he's near a stove, room heater, lighted cigarette or any open fire.

As the child grows older, he also must learn that the heat which makes some things hot to touch can also ignite his clothing and then burn him, too.

Children should be taught to be especially wary wherever there are room heaters, matches, incinerators, bonfires and kitchen stoves; these are the heat sources from which most clothing fires start.

It's also important that the child be dressed appropriately, in garments whose fabric and style are of the type least likely to involve him in a clothing fire.

BASIC FIBER OR FIBERS–Virtually all fabrics used for wearing apparel burn, including those made of cotton, rayon and other cellulose fibers such as silk, linen and wool; and those of the synthetic fibers including nylon, acetate, Orlon, Dacron and the many other currently on the market.

Fastest-burning of these fibers are cotton, rayon and silk. It is generally more difficult to ignite the synthetics, but most synthetics melt when exposed to heat, resulting in a hot, sticky substances which causes deep, serious burns. Wool is one fiber used for wearing apparel which is both difficult to ignite and slow to burn; some "modacrylic" synthetics such as Dynel have similar properties desirable in clothing fabrics.

WEIGHT AND WEAVE OF MATERIAL–In general, the more closely-woven the fabric, the less air flows through it and the more resistant it is to ignition and rapid flame spread.

SURFACE CHARACTERISTICS–Smooth - or - flat surfaced fabrics should be chosen for children's clothing.

Girls are more vulnerable to clothing fires than are boys because of feminine styles. The skirt of a girl's outfit stands away from her body, making air available on both sides of the garment and thus increasing the spread and intensity of fire once it starts.

Costumes worn by children for Hallowe'en, school plays and Christmas often pose special fire hazards. Yard goods and old sheets used for homemade costumes should be given a flameproofing treatment before they are worn.

When shopping for ready-made costumes, choose only those marked "flame-proof".

If clothing catches fire, DO NOT RUN–this only fans the flames and makes the fire worse. If the victim starts to run, grab him and push him to the ground to stop him. Then smother the flames with a coat, blanket or rug or by rolling the victim on the ground.

Remember always that CLOTHING CAN BURN.

Be careful around sources of ignition.

Wear sturdy clothes such as dungarees for playtime.

Letters to the Editor

Ed. Note: Former residents Archie and Mabel Keesling are enjoying their Hawaii retirement. When Mrs. Roy Archibald returned from a recent visit to the Islands, she brought with her this note from the Keeslings, and a copy of the Sailor family genealogy for the West Valley Historical Society.

Aloha from Hawaii:

Having had a good visit with Mrs. Eva Archibald, on her recent trip to Hawaii, and having heard about our many friends and acquaintances in the Campbell area, we want to send greetings to each and everyone.

With our 20 years of retirement happily spent in Hawaii and now in our mid 80's we still have many fond remembrances of our 30 years in the San Jose-Campbell area.

We enjoy good health and keep busy with Hawaiian arts and crafts. Archie's specialty is making bird feeders from whole coconuts and finds a ready sale.

Mabel feels she has recently accomplished the biggest achievement of her lifetime in compiling her family's genealogy (The Sailor family). It was six years of tedious work but she found relief through her Hawaiian art and craft work. Now she is enjoying successful results in marketing the book.

There are many similarities between Hawaii and the mainland, especially in business. Some large markets here have been running the contest of the Irish International Steeplechase Sweepstakes. It ended June 30, with the winner of the $1000 race being our No. 6! It's a great and glorious feeling-a dream come true. We have had some "face lifting" projects planned for around our home when we had the money to spare, so now we will do many little things to make our happy home life a little more comfortable.

Aloha to all
Archie and Mabel Keesling
